

DRAFT

Claim 1 (amended) A modular shelter unit comprising [an] a fully assembled, elongate horizontally oriented generally box structure, having interior sidewalls defining a generally cylindrically shaped first interior volume sized for temporary [human] occupation by a single human in a reposed position, and a solid bulkhead and exterior sidewalls extending to an opposing [end] portion defining a second separate interior volume for storage of human belongings, said box structure having opposing ends with openings sized only large enough for access by the single human. and specially configured for securing together a plurality of similar modular structures.

Claim 16 (amended) A modular shelter unit comprising a fully assembled, horizontally oriented generally rectangular [box] plastic water tight structure, having generally curved interior sidewalls and a bulkhead defining a first closed interior volume sized for a single reposed human, and exterior sidewalls extending to an opposing [end] portion in combination with said bulkhead defining a second closed interior volume, the structure having opposing ends each with a door sized only large enough for access by the single human, said exterior walls specially configured for securing together a plurality of said shelter units.

DRAFT